PRAY FOR THOSE AT SEA!

Words & Music by The Hon.ble Mrs. Norton.

PIANO-FORTE.

Oh!

lone and wide and track_less Lies the waste and drea_ry main By its waves dear friends are part_ _ed On its rocks are death and pain! Where the long pale shores are gleam_ing, What so_ _ _lemn thoughts should be! For_give the dead, the ab_ _sent, And pray for those at sea! Pray for those for those at sea!

2nd Verse.

On

land a taper burn_eth By the sick man's fever'd bed, By his side a woman kneel_eth, And in tears her pray'rs are said Her chil_ _dren slumber calmly Who or_ _phans soon shall be One son a_lone is ab_sent Oh! pray for those at sea!

Pray for those for those at sea!

3rd Verse.

The wild north wind is wail_ing O'er the drear and darken'd land, The waves are madly foam_ing, As they roll toward the strand, In the crash and roar of tem_ _ _ _pests, What help_ _ _ _ _ _ _ _less men may be! Oh!

kneel, for Heav'n is an_gry, And pray for those at sea! Pray for those, for those at sea!

Pray for those for those at sea!

"It was on the route homewards from the south of France, whither, as a last resource, she had been removed, that ....., the youngest daughter of Lady ....., a friend of the writer's, breathed her last. Scarcely sixteen, a more exquisite creature the light of Heaven never shone upon. The circumstances under which she died are faithfully given in the stanzas subjoined."

"The title of the song was suggested by the fact of the subject of it having been one of a group of sisters whose rarely equalled graces, no less than their number, had won for them, in the circles where the rest still move, the well-deserved appellation of 'THE PLEIADS'."

The Irish Emigrant.
